Course Description

This course examines political ideas that have emerged in the United States from the Founding. It will consider those ideas revealed in the debates concerning the American Founding, the American Civil War, Progressivism, and the Civil Rights Movement. It will also consider how the American government relates to the larger tradition of Western political thought.

Learning Objectives

- Understand the principles, purposes, institutions, and mores that constitute American government.
- Understand the debate over the U.S. Constitution's creation and ratification.
- Understand the debate over slavery, secession, and popular sovereignty.
- Understand the contemporary debates in American political thought.
- Improve our ability to read closely.
- Sharpen our ability to make good arguments.
